people of the 32nd Judicial who are now on the eve of their candidate to make the Circuit Judge—I feel it to make public our experience with Mr. Redwine as Prosecutor. As Mr. Redwine has reputation of being a great temperance and a whisky fighter, not want others to lose faith by actual experience—as I profit by my experience. I were to keep still the very would cry out, or should years ago as the Elliott and county people well remember were parties selling whisky across the Carter line in.

Remember, there are mothers who weep tears of anguish they think of their darling boys of the tender ages 12 years, coming from the accusatory drunk. Yes, drunk, where started on the downward road destruction, and perchance lives of misery and will fill a grave.

We seen a half dozen boys, on the Sabbath day, pass us, all so drunk they could not walk. Some would get down road; they could go no farther. Then the awful news would the father and mother, and mother would have to go and get home as best he could.

So with the consent and help of my I got up a petition (signed by woman who had an opportunity to sign it) and nearly all the imploring Redwine to put a stop to this illicit selling of the male stuff, and in the name of help us to save our boys. short time we got a letter Mr. Redwine, telling Mr. Kitchen to his best, he would stand

We sent the names of about boys—all under age—who we had bought whisky. They sent us from Elliott county for us, and there being no officer, Mr. Kitchen paid Mr. Salter to serve them. The boys to go, except two, who went before four indictments. Then went attachments for the other. In the meantime, Mr. Redwine was writing the most encouraging letters to us. Mr. Kitchen having them served, and got eight boys—all under age, re-started for the Elliott court. Probably each could made as many indictments as two. But when they got half way, Redwine turned them by a telephone message, saying had compromised. Mr. Kitchen about $12 or $15 and back, which we would not have had we stopped it. But whisky was sold right on. No one know my feeling when I R. I was so sure he would not be promised. I had told he was a Christian.

I would to God women could vote, and I surely believe every woman in this town would vote for Hannah. Ladies of the W. C. T. U. now is your time to work. See that the man that will deal the death blow to whisky is put in office. We can not vote, but they can not keep us from talking. Muster your armies, go to fighting. In my opinion the way to stop illicit whisky selling is to put men in office, who will honestly punish the offender, and not misuse the laws of our country. Believing Mr. Hannah to be the right man, there shall be a prayer in my heart day and night that he will be the successful man. Let every mother do the same.

The Big Tree.

The King of the Big Sandy River is the largest log ever floated out of the Cumberland mountains. The king is a red sycamore tree, which for years has been a landmark on the Big Sandy river in the mountains of Northeastern Kentucky.

Old trappers and hunters used the king as a landmark and flatboatmen often referred to him, and of late years he has been an object of much interest to lumbermen.

Last fall J. W. Taylor, general manager of the General Lumber Company of Columbus, purchased the king and had him cut down and prepared for market. The log is 60 inches in diameter at the smaller end, 64 feet long and contains 9000 square feet of inch lumber. The big log was floated to the mill of the General Lumber Company at Ashland, Ky., on the Ohio river, but in the high water of last winter washed away.

"The king enjoyed his freedom only for a short time, as he was recaptured at Portsmouth. He will be towed to Cincinnati this week, cut into quarter-sawed veneers and probably will be made into cigar boxes."

MURDER.

Fred Newsome Killed Burte Hamilton in Floyd County.

Fred Newsome shot and killed Burte Hamilton on Beaver in Floyd county last Monday evening. One report says the men were on their way home from a circus at Pikeville and renewed an old grudge that has existed between them. Another report says Newsome waylaid Hamilton.

There has been serious trouble between the men before. About a year ago they had a fight in which both were badly wounded. Hamilton was cut by Newsome so badly that it was several months before he recovered. At the same time Newsome was shot by Hamilton, but the wound did not prove to be very serious.

The following is from the Ashland Independent:

News has just reached here of a murder that occurred Monday in Mud Creek, in Floyd county, in which Jack Newsome, 24 years of age, lost his life at the hands of Bert Hambleton. Hambleton had just been released from the penitentiary, where he had served seven years for killing a man named Hall. Details of the tragedy have not yet been learned here.

To Take Over Kentucky Lands.

M. J. W. M. Stewart, of Ashland, referring to the Bascomb Coal and Coke Co., which has incorporated with an authorized capital stock of $300,000, says that the company was organized to take over coal lands held by other corporations in the Kentucky river district. He states that negotiations are at present pending which, if consummated, will result in the transfer of about 50,000 acres in that field now owned by another company. Plans for development have not been definitely determined. Among the incorporators of the company are Messrs. J. F. Wager, J. W. M. Stewart, B. E. Whitteman and J. G. Serey, of Ashland, and J. M. Hopkins, of Cynthiana.

THE FREE TRIP.

Much Interest in the Big Sandy News Trip To Jamestown, Richmond and Washington.

NEW FEATURE ADDED TO STIMULATE SUBSCRIPTION WORK.

There are a good many dollars in the Big Sandy News by persons not interested in the Jamestown contest and who do not cast any votes in it. These we designate as "Don't Care" votes. In order to stimulate the work for new subscribers we have decided to divide these votes amongst the three candidates having the greatest number of new subscriptions to their credit at a date to be announced later. The division of these votes will probably be 50 per cent to the one having the largest number, 30 per cent to the next and 20 to the next.

Definite announcement will be made a little later. This is a double inducement to work for new subscribers.

Two Veterans.

They live in Martin county, not far from the Lawrence county line. One of them is a man, by name Geo. W. Daniels and of age 81 years, and has been voting the Democratic ticket 60 years.

The other veteran is a mule, and he is Uncle George's "pardner." The biped veteran bought his quadruped companion when it was only a yearling, and that was in 1874. Last Saturday Uncle George and the mule were at work "laying off" corn ground, both hale and hearty.

These two live on the Wooten fork of the Stafford fork of Rockcastle and are well known and popular "citizens."

The Mule.

Old John Randolph, of Roanoke, humorously spoke of a mule as having no pride of ancestry and without hope of posterity, but the hybrid sizes up better in the financial world than his aristocratic cousin, the lordly horse. According to the government Bureau of statistics, the average value of horses in this county is $93.51, while mules average $112.12.

While not much on looks and with no pedigree to speak of, the people whose business it is to handle both find more dollars in the long ears than in his showy companion of the draft.

Tom Workman In Jail.

Deputy Sheriff John Hopkins, of Boyd county, came to Louisa yesterday morning, bringing with him Tom Workman, whom he had arrested in Cynthiana on a capias from the Lawrence Circuit Court. Workman was charged with selling liquor in this county, being, as many believe, the seller of the stuff which caused the murder of Miss Sophie Ross on Bear creek last summer. Sheriff Hopkins delivered his prisoner to the jailer whose guest he will probably be until next fall, if not longer.

Graham College made splendid progress during the term just closed under the leadership of Prof. J. B. McClure, and, not only is this a source of pride to the friends of the school, but proof of Prof. McClure's ability as a school man and also proof of the fact that the college can be made a success under proper management.

Mr. McClure has been called to a professorship in the Kentucky Normal College, at Louisa, Ky., which position he has accepted to the regret of the citizens of Graham, as it has been hoped that he would be retained here where, through indomitable courage and untiring effort he has made a new record for Graham College.

The Ball Game.

The Ashland club came up last Friday and played a game with the home team. The game took place on the ball grounds in Fountain Park and was quite well attended. The game was a good one, and although our boys came home covered with defeat as well as dust they have nothing to be ashamed of.

At the close of the Ninth inning the score was a tie—2 and 2. A tenth and final inning was played in which Ashland made three runs and the home club scored zero. Tobe Rule was chosen umpire and performed his thankless duties impartially.

Whitesburg, Ky., May 24. — Mrs. Ellen Flanery, a widow, was murdered at her home on Pert creek and her body was thrown into a deep drain. Her skull was fractured and there were several knife wounds. There was no witness to the crime, so far as known. Floyd Frazier is under arrest.

The C. and O. put Doc. Swetnam, of White House, out of the stock business and so Doc. is suing. He claims the loss of about a half dozen cows and steers and about as many hogs. His case was passed until the July term.

The Herald has a straight tip that The Page Lumber Co. paid Dan Davis $45,900 for the timber recently purchased on the 2,000 acre boundary on Jennies Creek. This is the largest timber deal yet closed in this section. The timber said to be the finest grade and the Page Company will spend thousands of dollars putting the timber on the market. Big band mills will be established on the land at once.—Paintsville Herald.

Sergent, Ky., May 25. Fearing mob violence to young Floyd Frazier, charged with the murder of Mrs. Ellen Flanery last Wednesday, the authorities spirited him across the mountains to-day, en route to the jail at Stanford for safekeeping. Frazier confessed to a prisoner in the jail here this morning that he committed the crime, and later repeated his story to the guard accompanying him to Stanford, detailing in full his horrid deed. Commonwealth Attorney Ira Fields and others made a systematic search of the Frazier home this afternoon, and found the Oleody pants worn by young Frazier on the day of the murder.

A warrant was issued to-day for Mrs. Nannie Adams, young Floyd Frazier's mother, in connection with the murder of Mrs. Ellen Flanery, and officers have gone to arrest her. The murdered woman's brother, Joseph Mullins, has arrived from Wise county, and the body will be exhumed for a closer examination.

The latest to join the Louisa troop of pony riders is Miss Roberta Dixson. Her mount is a beautiful Shetland, bought from the Van Amburg Show.

AWFUL DETAILS

Of the Burning of Rev. Short's Children at East Point.

Further particulars have been received from East Point about the burning of Rev. Silas Short's residence and children.

The fire occurred at eleven o'clock at night. It originated in the kitchen and the only stairway leading to the floor was located in the kitchen. When the flames and smoke awakened Mr. and Mrs. Short the kitchen and stairway had already been consumed and they barely had time to escape through a window opening over a porch. Their three little girls were sleeping in the room with them. These all escaped through the window.

The entrance to the room where the three boys were sleeping was cut off and by the time Mr. Short reached the ground he could hear the frantic cries of the little fellows, one of whom was four years old, another eight, and the third older. While Mr. Short was trying to climb to a window the oldest boy was breaking out the glass and trying to save his little brothers, whose cries by this time were heart-rending. The heat and smoke was stifling and about the time the oldest boy was ready to lift one of the others to the window a blind fell, striking him in the face, adding confusion to his already dazed condition, and causing him to drop his brother. The flames were now upon him and all he could do was to swing himself out through the window, so badly burned that there is but little hope for his recovery.

Another sad feature is that Mr. Short had another child burned to death a few years ago, while living in this county.

Judge Redwine's Court.

Louisville, Ky., May 4, 1907. Editor Kentucky Issue: Our circuit court has just closed here. Judge M. M. Redwine's instructions to the grand jury were terrific against the sale of whisky and against the crimes growing out of the sale and use of spirituous liquors. Several men were tried and fined heavily on this class of offenses. Judge Redwine instructed that distillers are not protected by wholesaling if they sell to the consumer in any way, to wholesale is to sell to the dealer, and this ruling is what is putting a number to distillers out of business.

Two of them came into court at this term and renounced the business that has given our people so much trouble, and executed bond in the sum of $500 each that they would not again violate the law. A few more outrages like Judge Redwine's and this great evil will be driven out of our county. The serpent's head will soon be cut off.

Fraternally,

S. F. Reynolds.

Van Amburg.

Van Amburg's Show was in Louisville Saturday and gave an exhibition far above the average in quantity and quality. The display of animals was very good, and the ring performance brought out some exceedingly good things in varied lines. The acts of the Japs and the slack wire performance were by far the best ever seen in Louisville. The band is large and excellent.

Shortly after the door opened for the afternoon performance the rain poured in torrents, and at night it stormed again. But this was only to be expected on circus day.

New Church at Inez.

The Southern Methodists of Martin county, are going to build a new house of worship. It will be ample in size, modern in style and construction, and will be built of concrete blocks. This was determined during the recent visit of the Revs. Williams and Hulette, and the work will begin at an early day and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The men who are backing this laudable undertaking are very much in earnest, and have both means and desire to accomplish so good an end.

CHAPTER XXII.

A Prowler of the Night.

Down we plunged into the cellar, through the trap and to the Door of Bewilderment.

"Don't expect too much," admonished Larry; "I can't promise you a single Spanish coin."

"Perish the ambition! We have blocked Pickering's game, and nothing else matters," I said.

We crawled through the hole in the wall and lighted candles. The room was about seven feet square. At the farther end was an oblong wooden door, close to the ceiling, and Larry tugged at the fastening until it came down, bringing with it a mass of snow and leaves.

"Gentlemen," he said, "we are at the edge of the ravine. Do you see the blue sky? And yonder, if you will twist your necks a bit, is the boat-house."

"Well, let the scenic effects go and show us where you found those papers," I urged.

"Speaking of mysteries, that is where I throw up my hands, lads. It's quickly told. Here is a table, and here is an old despach box, which lies just where I found it. It was closed and the key was in the lock. I took out that packet—it wasn't even sealed—saw the character of the contents, and couldn't resist the temptation to try the effect of an announcement of its discovery on your friend Pickering. Now that is nearly all. I found this piece of paper under the tape with which the envelope was tied, and I don't hesitate to say that when I read it I laughed until I thought I should shake down the cellar. Read it, John Glenarm!"

He handed me a fragment of legal paper on which was written in the unmistakable handwriting of John Marshall Glenarm, these words:

HE LAUGHS BEST WHO LAUGHS LAST.

"What do you think is so funny in this?" I demanded.

"Who wrote it, do you think?" asked Stoddard.

"Who wrote it, do you ask? Why Jack's grandfather wrote it! John Marshall Glenarm, the cleverest, grandest old man that ever lived, wrote it!" declaimed Larry, his voice booming loudly in the room. "It's all a great big game, fixed up to try you and Pickering—but principally you, you blockhead! Oh, it's grand, perfectly, deliciously grand,—and to think it should be my good luck to share in it!"

"Humph! I'm glad you're amused, but it doesn't strike me as being so awfully funny. Suppose those had fallen into Pickering's hands; then where would the joke have been, I should like to know?"

"On you, my lad, to be sure! The old gentleman wanted you to study architecture; he wanted you to study his house; he even left a little pointer in an old book! Oh, it's too good to be true!"

"That's all clear enough," observed Stoddard, knocking upon the despach box with his knuckles. "But why do you suppose he dug this hole here with its outlet on the ravine?"

"Oh, it was the way of him!" explained Larry. "He liked the idea of queer corners and underground passages. This is a bully hiding place for man or treasure, and that outlet into the ravine makes it possible to get out of the house with nobody the wiser. It's in keeping with the rest of his scheme. Be gay, comrades! Tomorrow will likely find us with plenty of business on hands. At present we hold the fort, and let us have a care lest we lose it."

We closed the ravine door, restored the wall as best we could, and returned to the library. We made a list of the Pickering notes and spent an hour discussing this new feature of the situation and speculating as to the hiding place of the remainder of my grandfather's fortune. Larry and Stoddard both declared their intention of remaining until my troubles were ended in spite of my protests. Stoddard stayed for dinner, and afterward we began again our eternal quest for the treasure, our hopes high from Larry's lucky strike of the afternoon, and with a new eagerness born of the knowledge that the morrow would certainly bring us face to face with the real crises. We ranged the house from tower to cellar; we overhauled the tunnel, for it seemed to me, the hundredth time.

It was my watch, and at midnight, after Stoddard and Larry had reconnoitered the grounds and Bates and I had made sure of all the interior fastenings, I sent them off to bed and made myself comfortable with a pipe in the library.

I was glad of the respite, glad to be alone,—to consider my talk with Marian Devereux at St. Agatha's, and her return with Pickering. Why could she not always have been Olivia, ranging the woodland, or the girl in gray, or that woman, so sweet in her dignity, who came down the stairs at the Armstrongs? Her own attitude toward me was so full of contradictions; she had appeared to me in so many moods and mises, that my spirit ranged the gamut of feeling as I thought of her. But it was the recollection of Pickering's infamous conduct that crouching involuntarily, and clutching the club ready to strike.

"Good evening, Mr. Glenarm!"

Marian Devereux's voice broke the silence, and Marian Devereux's face with the full light of the lantern upon it, was bent gravely upon me. Her voice, as I heard it there,—her face, as I saw it there,—are the things that I shall remember last when my hour comes to go hence from this world. Her slim fingers, as they clasped the wire screen of the lantern, held my gaze for a second. The red tam-o'-shanter that I had associated with her youth and beauty was tilted rakishly on one side of her pretty head. To find her here, seeking like a thief in the night, for some means of helping Arthur Pickering, was the bitterest drop in the cup. I felt as though I had been struck with bludgeon.

"I beg your pardon!" she said, and laughed. "There doesn't seem to be anything to say, does there? Well, we do certainly meet under the most unusual, not to say unconventional, circumstances, Squire Glenarm! Please go away or turn you back. I want to get out of this donjon keep."

She took my hand coolly enough and stepped down into the passage. Then I broke out stormily.

"You don't seem to understand the gravity of what you are doing! Don't you know that you are risking your life in crawling through this house at midnight?—that even to serve Arthur Pickering a life is a pretty big thing to throw away? Your infatuation for that blackguard seems to carry you far, Miss Devereux."

She swung the lantern at arm's length back and forth so that its rays at every forward motion struck my face like a blow.

"It isn't exactly pleasant in this cavern. Unless you wish to turn me over to the lord high executioner, I will bid you good night."

"But the infamy of this—of coming in here to spy upon me—to help my enemy—the man who is seeking plunder—doesn't seem to trouble you."

"No. Not a particle!" she replied quietly, and then, with an impudent fling, "Oh, no!" she held up the lantern to look at the wick. "I'm really disappointed to find that you were a little ahead of me, Squire Glenarm. I didn't give you credit for so much—perseverance. But if you have the notes—"

"The notes! He told you there were notes, did he? The coward sent you here to find them, after his other tools failed him?"

She laughed that low laugh of hers that was like the bubble of a spring.

"Of course no one would dare deny what the great Squire Glenarm says," she said witheringly.

"You can't know what your perfidy means to me," I said. "That night at the Armstrongs, I thrilled at the sight of you. As you came down the stairs, way I thought of you as my good angel and I belonged to you—all my life, the better future that I wished to make for your sake."

"Please don't!" she exclaimed sorrowfully, the mirth all gone. "I felt that my words had touched her; that there were regret and repentance in her tone and in the gesture with which she turned from me.

She hurried down the passage toward the chapel, swinging the lantern at her side, and I followed, still mystified and angered by her composure. She even turned, with pretty courtesy, to hold the light for me at the crypt steps,—a service that I accepted perforce and with joyless acquiescence in the irony of it. I knew that I did not believe in her; her conduct as to Pickering was utterly indefensible,—I could not forget that; but the light of her eyes, her tranquil brow, the sensitive lips, whose mockery stung and pleased in a breath,—by such testimony, my doubts were alternately reinforced and disarmed. Swept by these changing moods I followed her out into the crypt.

"You seem to know a good deal about this place, and I suppose I can't object to your familiarizing yourself with your own property. And the notes—I'll give myself the pleasure of handing them to you to-morrow. You can cancel them and give them to Mr. Pickering,—a fitting pledge between you!"

I thrust my hands into my pockets to give an impression of ease I did not possess.

"Yes," she remarked in a practical tone; "$320,000 dollars is no mean sum of money. Mr. Pickering will undoubtedly be delighted to have his debts canceled."

"In exchange for a life of devotion," I sneered. "So you knew the sum—the exact amount of these notes. He hasn't served you well. He should have told you that we found them to-day."

"You are not nice, are you, Squire Glenarm, when you are cross?" But Mr. Pickering wasn't kind not to tell me. Why, I might catch a dreadful cold down here!"

She was like Olivia now. I felt the utter futility of attempting to reason with a woman who could become a child at will. She walked up the steps and out into the church vestibule. Then before the outer door she spoke with all the horrors of distress and poverty.

"Follow these recipes strictly and you will be miserable to your heart's content—if we may so speak—sick at heart and at variance with the world. Nothing will cheer or encourage you nothing will throw a gleam of sunshine or a ray of warmth into your heart. You will be an isolated creature, a perfect picture of woe, discontent and despair.

THE FOOLISH OF THE DAY.

There is a disastrous ambition abroad for being "gentled." We keep up appearances too often at the expense of honesty, and though we may not be rich, yet we must seem to be "respectable," though only in the meanest sense—in mere vulgar show. We have not the courage to go patiently onward in the condition of life in which it has pleased God to call us, but must needs in some fashionable state to which we are ridiculously pleased to call ourselves, and all to gratify the vanity of that which we form a part. There is a constant struggle and pressure for front seats in the social amphitheatre, in the midst of which all noble, self-denying resolve is trodden down and many fine natures are inevitably crushed to death. What waste, what misery, what bankruptcy, come from all this ambition to dazzle others with a glare of apparent worldly success, we need not describe. The mischievous results show themselves in a thousand ways—in the rank frauds committed by men who dare to be dishonest, but do not care to seem poor; and in the desperate dashes at fortune, in which the pity is not so much for those who fall as for the hundreds of innocent families who are so often involved in their ruin.

She lifted the lantern to turn out its light, and it made a glory of her face but she paused and held it toward me.

"Pardon me! You will need this to light you home."

"But you must not cross the park alone!"

"Good night! Please be sure to close the door to the passage when you go down. You are a dreadfully heedless person, Squire Glenarm."

She flung open the outer chapel door and ran along the path toward St. Agatha's. I watched her in the starlight until a bend in the path hid her swift-moving figure.

Down through the passage I hastened, her lantern lighting my way. At the Door of Bewilderment I closed the opening, setting up the line of wall as we had left it in the afternoon, and then I went back to the library, freshened the fire and brooded before it until Bates came to relieve me at dawn.

What becomes of the honey after the honeymoon is over?

Keep the home fires bright if you would have the winter of life warm and pleasant.

By all means keep the bright home-lights burning and open wide the shutters. Home should not be a darkened, narrow and exclusive place—that invites narrowness and selfishness in the individual. It should be a spot from which light and joy and good cheer radiate.

You get "down in the mouth" too easily, my friend. Cheer up!

walk on the sunny side of the street; live where you can catch the south winds. Sunshine always

Oh, if you would gather all the tender memories, all the lights and shades of the heart, all banqueting and reunion, all filial, fraternal, paternal, and conjugal affections, and you had only just four letters with which to spell out that height, and depth, and length, and breadth, and magnitude, and eternity of meaning, you would, with streaming eyes, and trembling voice, and agitated hand, write it out in those four living capitals, H-O-M-E.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Ladocia Moore, the subject of this sketch, was born in Lawrence county, Ky., Nov. 12, 1840, and departed this life April 29, 1907, aged 66 years, 5 months and 16 days. Since early girlhood she had been a Christian and for a number of years a devoted and worthy member of the M. E. Church, South. On February 16, 1857, she was married to Wesley Moore, to this union were born seven sons and seven daughters, twelve of which survive her.

The home which Bro. and Sister Moore established in their young life was a home of prayer. The first night they occupied their humble home they erected a family altar, and during all their lives offered daily sacrifice to our God.

Their home was ever the minister's home, and in the early days of Southern Methodism in the Little Blaine Valley their home served as a church. Her hands were ever outstretched to relieve the suffering, uplift the fallen and minister to the poor. I do not think it possible to dedicate to her memory a nobler tribute than to say she died as she lived, full of faith in Him who said, "They that wait upon me shall renew their strength." I have often heard her declare, "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and though skin worms destroy this body yet in my flesh shall I see God."

A few hours before her departure she called her children about her and spoke to them of the glory that was awaiting her as a faithful servant of God just over the border land, and admonished them to meet her in the beautiful land on high. And closing her eyes on this world she calmly fell asleep to awake in Jesus.

Children look not sadly down for mother is not dead, but more alive than ever in that happy world above.

Her funeral was preached by the writer. After which we laid her body to rest in the family burying ground to await the resurrection of the just.

Another soldier of the cross.

Has laid the armour down.

Now we are a golden crown.

That when this life is over

We may meet her in that land,

We are authorized to announce J. B. Hannah, of Elliott county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge of the 2nd District, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Convention June 22nd.

The Big Sandy News has always maintained a neutral position in local races for Democratic nominations. Our readers may depend upon the fact that we are paid for the publication of every article that has any bearing upon the candidacy of any one, directly or indirectly. All candidates are given the privilege of using the columns on the same terms. The articles are published as advertising and do not carry with them the indorsement of the NEWS.

The premium list for the Lawrence County Fair will be made up soon so that the farmers will know what to work for. The list of products will, however, be about the same as heretofore. Let every farmer begin now to prepare for exhibits.

The question of good roads is the greatest problem before the people of the mountains of Kentucky. It takes money to build good roads, but they are the best asset that any people can have. When we make up our minds to go at the job right, as we shall finally have to do, it will be the greatest step forward ever taken.

Finley E. Fogg, whom the Governor named as Col. Greene's successor, as a State Prison Commissioner is a well-known young lawyer of the mountain section of Kentucky. He is the Democratic State Executive Committeeman for the Tenth congressional district, and is quite active in Democratic politics of his end of the State. He has been making a quiet canvass among Democratic nominees for the Legislature for election to succeed Commissioner Greene, and will continue in the race.

On the nineteenth ballot, McDonald Ferguson, the present Railroad Commissioner, was nominated for re-election by the First district Democratic convention at Henderson.

Mrs. William McKinley, who was stricken by paralysis at her home in Canton, O., last Friday, died at 1:05 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The transition from life to death was so peaceful and gradual that it was with difficulty that the vigilant physicians and attendants noted when dissolution came.

There was no struggle, no pain. Mrs. McKinley never knew of the efforts made for days to prolong her life, nor of the solicitude of hope against hope, of her sister and other relatives and friends, for her recovery.

Mrs. McKinley's last words were for death. An attendant said:

"Mrs. McKinley would say: 'Why should I linger?' Please, God, if it be thy will, why defer it?" She would also say, "He is gone and life is dark to me now." Other kindred expressions fell from her lips. She was buried Wednesday.

Hoisington, Kans., May 6.—We Jay-Hawkers are in the midst of very peculiar weather. During March the thermometer registered 90 in the shade, in April, the temperature was changeable, varying from warm to freezing, accompanied with snow, and May has been very damp and chilly with some snow. As a result of the above we have lost out on fruit, but this cold weather has been very favorable to wheat.

We look forward to a fine crop of wheat, corn and grass. All Western Kansas is being broken now, preparatory to next year's wheat crop. This peculiar weather has no effect on a western farmer, they are only stimulated to plant larger crops for the next year. The acreage this year exceeds by far any previous year. Next year no doubt will still be greater.

You would have reasons to believe it could be seen those engines drawing the plows on the prairie, cutting from 12 to 16 feet at one turn.

The sugar beet industry is assuming huge proportions in Western Kansas, and one of the largest sugar factories in the U. S. is at Garden City, Kans.

Sugar beet land sells as high as $150.00 per acre along the Arkansas river, which could have been bought three years ago for $10.00 per acre. This factory uses 1000 tons of beets a day, which makes 225,000 lbs of sugar. It consumes 125 tons of coal per day and enough water to supply a city of 50,000 people.

Stock raising is quite an industry in this State and the farmer and ranchman are giving it much attention, but the Kansas men take the lead of all the states in the poultry business, and egg production.

The growing of small fruits is demanding a great deal of attention, and in fact everything thrives here that will grow any place. So I feel safe in saying that Kansas is one of the greatest, if not the greatest agricultural State in the Union.

When I realize all these advantages and facilities I am puzzled to know that so many people in the East on a little poor hillside farm will labor and toil only for subsistence and the maintenance of their families, when all this broad West, so rich in soil and resources lay idle, and yet a finer climate can not be found one more healthy and salubrious. We have a great country and the hospitality of our people unlimited, making it a most desirable place to live and build homes. I close with Greeley's admonition to young men, "Come West."

Yours truly,

Dr. T. C. Burton.

After four years of hard study Dr. John M. Moore, formerly of this place, has graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Cincinnati. The NEWS wishes him success in his chosen vocation.

Ervin Wright Shot.

From correspondents of the NEWS
it is learned that during a difficult period which occurred on Irish creek last Saturday Sam Large shot and badly wounded Ervin Wright. The building of a fence which it is said obstructed the public highway and encroached upon Large's possessions, was the cause of the trouble. The weapon used was a shotgun and Wright's leg received the charge.

CLOTHING

From Old Kentucky.

Editor American Sheep Breeder:—
My Angora goats have done fine this winter, and kidding has just commenced. I am making every effort possible to save the kids, as I have bred my does to Hoerle's imported A. B. Hobson buck. I breed them at the rate of 6 to 10 a day. This will give us a chance to see that the mothers own their kids, as I have experienced in the past the yearling does will not own their kids very well at first, and I haven't been very successful in raising them (not over 25 per cent.) but I haven't lost patience or faith, but what I can raise them here, and I intend to build up a flock of Angora goats that will be a credit to our State, as this part of the State (or rather Eastern Kentucky) is an ideal country for goat and sheep farms. It is mountainous, with rich creek valleys. The hills have been very productive while fresh, but the majority of farmers have raised corn several years in succession until it will not produce over 20 bushels an acre, average, while fresh land will produce 30 to 50 bushels, and if put down in grass after it has had one or two crops of corn or tobacco, it will produce a good sod of blue grass or any other grass, even to red top. But I find it is expensive to keep the sprouts from growing or smothering the grass out, unless it is cut once a year.

So here is where the goats come in. While the mohair will more than pay for the extra feed they require in winter, which will not be much after you have grass sod to feed them on and only have to feed when there is a deep snow on the ground. It has been an experiment for the last five years. I owned a large tract of timber land, and after I had sawed the timber and taken everything off, such as hickory spokes and cross ties, the land was not worth over $5 per acre. That is what such land sold for here. So I had some tobacco barns built and leased my land to tobacco growers. They would clear the land for two crops and then put in rye and grass.

I got a good stand of grass, but the sprouts were so hard to keep down that it cost all I could get from pasturing the grass and have this done once a year, but now I have the goats and follow with sheep. I am getting one of the best hill farms in this section, while my neighbors have worn out the hill and grown up with sprouts. I just mention my experience so others may profit by it. My land is now worth $15 per acre. I have now a flock of native ewes and so far have 160 lambs dropped in February, from 150 ewes, and 50 more ewes to lamb. I have castrated and docked all my lambs, and with full stock Shropshire rams I hope to build up a good flock of sheep. I intend to run all my ewes and lambs in one flock and change to new fields once a week. I have eight fields containing about 100 acres each, but one-third of the fields are in woods. I will put my goats on the fields after the sheep. This will make the goats clean out the sprouts and give the sheep and lambs the best grass.

Last year I divided my flock and put some on each field, and had some loss from stomach worms.

I will keep Summer's Worm Powders in the salt before them all the time.

As I am also engaged in other business I would like to have a practiced sheep raiser with $2,000 to take a share in my sheep and goat business. I have a good show for the right sort of a man who is willing to live in an old settled country, but rather backward in up-to-date farming and living. It is through your valuable paper that I have been induced to go into the sheep and goat business, and I am not sorry of it, as it is what every land owner in this section should have on his sprout hill farm, and first of all your valuable paper.

H. N. Fischer,
Webbville, Ky.

Seldom Wear Out

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain—not only once, but as many times as it is necessary to take them. Many persons who suffer from chronic ailments find in them a source of great relief from the suffering which they would otherwise be compelled to endure. Their soothing influence upon the nerves strengthen, rather than weaken them. For this reason they seldom lose their effectiveness.

"I am 62 years old and have suffered for 42 years from nervous troubles, rheumatism and neuralgia, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and pains around the heart. The Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have been a blessing to me. I don't know what I should do without them, and they are the only remedy I have ever used that either did not wear out in less time than I have been using them, or else the injurious results were such that I would be obliged to cease their use."

MRS. S. C. ROBINSON, 27 Carter St., Chattanooga, Tenn. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will do its work. If it fails, he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.

There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube.

When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Owingsville, Ky., May 23.—Sixty business men of this place have decided to construct an electric trolley road from this place to the C. and O. road at Salt Lick, and by Carlisle to Cincinnati.

The Olive Hill Times says: On last Monday Dr. P. C. Layne, of Ashland, assisted by Dr. M. W. Armstrong, a local physician, operated on Frank, the nine-year-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Woods. The operation was a successful one.

Judge B. F. Bennett, aged seventy-seven, father of Representative J. B. Bennett, was married in the County Clerk's office at Greenup last Thursday morning to Miss Ella R. Sullivan, his housekeeper.

Grayson, Ky., May 24.—The court house building commission went into session Thursday afternoon and opened bids for the construction of a $20,000 court building. There were a number of bids filed, each accompanied by a certified check for $2,000. Lowman & Co., of Louisville, secured the contract.

It is announced that a $250,000 plant for the manufacture of chemicals will be built at Kenova, W. Va.

The new enterprise will be operated by Pittsburg and St. Louis capitalists, who have signed a contract with the Kenova Land Association to locate the plant at Kenova. It is understood that the erection of the necessary buildings and the installation of machinery will require more than a year's time, and that the principal manufacture will be materials used in the construction of fireproof buildings. Mr. C. P. Ichle, superintendent of the Kenova Land Association, telegraphs the Manufacturers' Record, that no further details are ready for publication. The Basic Products Co. is said to be the title of the chemical company.

Monday afternoon, while H. L. Wright and nephew, Claude Newman, of Huntington, were en route home from the west end sewer, in that city, for which Mr. Wright is the contractor, and upon which Mr. Newman has been employed, they were attacked by two men armed with knives, and both received wounds from which recovery seems highly improbable.

The men were reprimanded by Mr. Wright for trespassing on the latter's premises.

This excited the ire of the men, and an altercation ensued. Mr. Newman was some distance away when his uncle was attacked. One of the men closed with Mr. Newman in front, while the other, stealing behind him, unaware, thrust a long knife to the hilt into his back, a few inches to the right of the vertebrae.
